Peter Thomson is the author of Sacred Sea: A Journey to Lake Baikal and an independent writer and radio producer living in Boston. He was the founding producer and editor of National Public Radio's groundbreaking environmental news program Living on Earth in 1991, and in a decade with the program also served as senior editor, senior correspondent and special projects editor. Thomson's work as an editor, reporter and program producer has been honored with numerous awards, for reports and documentaries on subjects ranging from oil, natives and wildlife on Alaska's North Slope to threats facing America's drinking water supply to the environmental legacy of the Lewis and Clark expedition. He also serves on the board of the Society of Environmental Journalists.
