Introduction to Anthropology / Orientation to the Course

In addition to the Moodle site the Companion Course Calendar for Fall 2012 is available on-line at

I'm looking forward to Monday the 10th.

Prehistoric Cultures gets underway on Monday the 10th at 5:00 in Cina 214. We'll first have a look at the course in general, and then we'll head off to Venezuela to have a look at the Yanomamó. It's an older film, but still one of the very best video examples of multidisciplinary anthropological fieldwork <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anth1602/pcvideo_schedule_CEE.html#title>.

As I mentioned in the 19 August 2012 memo, one of the four main characteristics of American Anthropology is fieldwork, "a primary research technique, involving "participant observation," which usually means living among the people one is interested in learning from and about. And as I also mentioned, it would be wonderful if for anthropology classes we could just rent a bus or charter a plane and fly off for a year or more to learn first-hand from the people themselves. Money, time, and practicality prohibit that, so the next best things—when it comes to studying anthropology—is going to places and viewing subjects by film—which is why right off the bat we're off to Venezuela to visit the *Yanomamó. More information on Visual Anthropology is available on-line at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anth1604/visual_anthropology.html#title>. Be sure to have a look at that from time to time.

If you haven't read the 19 August 2012 memo yet—the one that says this will be a great class—you should do that now. The memo is available in the Week 1 block of your Moodle folder, and in the IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENTS section of Block 1, and on-line at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anth1602/memos/weekly%20memos/pc_Week_01_memo_welcome_f2012_CE.pdf>. Take your pick. Pay attention to the information on place names, fossil and archaeological site names, and on the exams, and on the Forums and wikis.

Also have a look at the Meet Your Professor page at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/MeetYourProfessor.html#title>), where you will find more information than you or anyone else really needs to know, with some nice photos, at http://www.d.umn.edu/~troufs/anthfood/PowerPoint/af-meet_your_prof.pptx.

Why?

You'll likely learn more in this class if you do, you'll remember it longer, and you'll probably have more fun (at least according to Helen Mongan-Rallis of the UMD Department of Education).

You might also want to have a look at the information in your noodle folder, or the companion on-line materials, which you can find on the web at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anth1602/pccal-f2012-CE.html#title>.

REM: Information on the textbooks can be found at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anth1602/pctext.html#title>.

More information on the text is available on the course text WebPage at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anth1602/pctext.html#title>.

Detailed information on these sorts of activities will be provided as we go along, but you can have a preview look in your Moodle home anytime you like.

My office hours (and regular schedule information) can be found at your Moodle "Home" and on-line on the regular UMD WebSite at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anth1602/pcoffice.html#title>.

Don't forget, laptops are welcome in the classroom. Many find a laptop quite useful in following the lectures as all lectures are web supported. You can, for example, download all of the slide materials used in class.

Your moodle Topics and Reading Assignments Listings for Week 01 will look something like the information at the end of this memo.

If you have any questions right now, please do not hesitate to post them on the moodle "Messenger" or e-mail troufs@d.umn.edu, or stop in before class at Cina 215 [map
