Ottoman Influences A.D. 1517 - and Europe as an Ethnographic "Culture Area", and Other Units of Analysis (cont.), and
"Master Texts and 'Classics'"

Week 4 we talk Turkey. . . .

Week 4 we’ll continue to have a look at the historical framework for the course by looking at one of the early major influences in many parts of Europe (and beyond)—Ottoman, Moorish, and other Turkish Empires. Arabs controlled much of the Iberian Peninsula (Spain, Portugal, Andorra, Gibraltar, and part of France) starting in the 8th century (A.D. 711) and ending just as Columbus was “discovering” America in 1492.

With a strong presence in Europe of almost 800 years, the Arabs had a considerable influence in the Mediterranean in general and the Iberian Peninsula in particular. Even after the Reconquista of Spain and the other countries the Ottomans exerted considerable influence over, including Sicily, much of the Arab influence in the eastern Mediterranean and Southeastern Europe continued.

That influence continues through the present-day. And influence from that neck of the woods may become stronger if/when Turkey is admitted to the EU in 2014.

New York Times Magazine featured an article by Suzy Hansen, “Whose Turkey is It?” (9 February 2014, pp. 34-39), which outlines a recent struggle between the Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan (since 2003) and a self-professed nonpolitical, anti-violence, pro-business, and patriotic Muslim preacher, Fethullah Gulen. This could continue to be a factor in discussions with the EU.

Watch (again) the presentation “Imperial History of the Middle East: 5000 Years of History in 90 seconds.” It’s short—135 seconds (things are not always as advertised). (Pay special attention to what is happening within the borders of modern-day Europe.) ISIS (Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham) declared itself a “Caliphate” 29 June 2014 under the name under the name "Islamic State". The U.S.A. and its allies continue the militaristic imperial history in 2015, extending the 3000-year-old-pattern. France in recent weeks, following the Charlie Hebdo attacks, has mobilized almost 15,000 extra police and troops to strengthen French domestic security.

In short, it is difficult to understand much of modern-day Europe, and modern-day Europeans, without understanding the earlier historical influences of the various Arab groups. You have already begun to see that in the Greek villages.

After having a look at Süleyman the Magnificent we’ll return to continue having a look at Europe as an Ethnographic "Culture Area", Other Units of Analysis, and “Master Texts” and Classics.

We will have in-class discussion on Süleyman the Magnificent, and a chance for a . . .
