UMD COMMENCEMENTS
UMD graduate commencement will be held at 7 pm on Thursday, May 14 in the UMD Romano Gymnasium. The total number of graduate degrees awarded from UMD this academic year is 225. UMD professor and distinguished geoscience researcher Vickie Hansen will deliver the featured commencement address. Hansen is the McKnight Presidential Professor of Earth and Planetary Sciences. Her research and teaching interests include understanding how rocky/icy planets work, evolve, and lose heat; in short, how they tick. She is particularly fascinated with the bending and breaking of planet surfaces, and the resulting record of operative planetary processes, especially on Earth and Venus.

Undergraduate Commencement will be held at 12 noon on Saturday, May 16 at the DECC. This will be UMD's largest commencement, with 1,200 students at the event and a total of 1,800 receiving undergraduate degrees this academic year. Lois and Jeno Paulucci, civic leaders, humanitarians and internationally recognized entrepreneurs will be honored during the ceremony. Lois Paulucci will be presented the Chancellor’s Distinguished Service Award, and Jeno Paulucci will be awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree for public service. From their humble roots in Northeastern Minnesota, the Pauluccis have created and have built more than 50 companies and organizations worldwide, which led to economic opportunities for thousands of workers. Over the years, Jeno and Lois Paulucci have quietly helped hundreds of people when faced with personal hardships, from providing transportation for seeking medical care to financial help during a crisis. The student speaker will be James Cook, a graduate in the School of Fine Arts and the College of Liberal Arts from Amherst, Wisconsin.

NEMBA WRITING WORKSHOP
The UMD Library and Lake Superior Writers will host the NEMBA writing workshop, led by Annette Atkins, entitled “Writing and Remembering Our Stories” from 2-4 pm on May 16, in the...
Library Rotunda. Explore the sacred responsibilities of writers’ work and words. The writing workshop fee is $35 for LSW members and $40 for nonmembers. To register, e-mail deborahdeboop@aol.com.

SMART SCHOLARSHIP

Jessica Gary, a student in the Geological Science master degree program and research assistant with the Large Lakes Observatory has been awarded the SMART Scholarship (Science, Math, and Research for Transformation) to pursue her Ph.D. on the UMD campus in the UM Geophysics/Geology program. The Department of Defense Cold Regions Research and Engineering Lab (CRREL), which is a part of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineer’s Engineer Research and Development Center (ERDC) is Gary’s sponsor. Gary’s advisers are Steve Colman and Nigel Wattrus.

GRAD RECEIVES FULBRIGHT

Sarah Willis, a recent UMD graduate, has been awarded a Fulbright English Teaching Assistantship in Germany for 2009-2010. Sarah received her B.A. in German Studies and International Studies, with a minor in music, in December 2008. This semester she has been working in Berlin for a program called Germany-meets-Turkey: A Forum for Young Leaders.

RHETORICAL STUDIES RESEARCH

Faculty in the UMD Department of Writing Studies with faculty in the Department of Communication have established the first Duluth-based Graduate School Interdisciplinary Research Group in Rhetorical Studies. The group has won a second Institute for Advanced Study grant to continue work in rhetorical studies. These faculty have been meeting for four years discussing their research and cutting-edge research in the field. Faculty include David Beard (convenor), Kenneth Marunowski, David Gore, Michael Pfau, Elizabeth Nelson, and Juli Parrish with Mark Huglen (UM Crookston).

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Volunteers are needed for both the Graduate Program Ceremony at 7 pm on Thurs., May 14 in the Romano Gymnasium and the Bachelor’s Degree Ceremony at noon on Sat., May 16 in the DECC Arena. Volunteers are needed to help the graduates line up, hand out programs, answer guest questions and help guests in the VIP section. Volunteers will review their responsibilities on Wed., May 13 at 2 pm in the Administrative Conference Room, 520 DAdB. If interested, call Lucy Kragness at 726-6176.

MENTORS/STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES

Penny Cragun and Judy Bromen from the Office of Disability Resources and Trudie Hughes from the Department of Education piloted a program of faculty mentoring of 11 students with disabilities. Participating faculty included: Paul Bates, Steve Castleberry, Georgia Keeney, Paul Kiprof, Kathryn Milun, Gerry Nierengarten, Mark Nierengarten, Amy Versnik Nowak, Helen Raillis, Shannon Stevenson, Rajiv Vaidyanathan, and James Vizanko. Faculty interested in faculty mentoring next year are invited to contact Disability Resources.

STUDY ABROAD SUMMER 2009

The UMD International Education Office is sponsoring 10 faculty led study abroad programs during the May and Summer session 2009. Art, Archaeology, History, and Mythology in Greece will be led by Ron Marchese and Alexis Pogorelskin. Business and Economics in China will be led by Dahui Li. Communications in Hawaii will be led by Mike Sunnafrank. Communication Sciences and Disorders Conference in China will be led by Mark Mizuko. Education in Northern Ireland will be led by Molly Minkkinen and Kim Riordan. Geology in Iceland will be led by Howard Mooers. Language and Culture in Germany will be led by Michael Mullins. Language and Culture in China will be led by Zhuangyi Liu. Microbiology in Poland will be led by Conrad Firling. Teaching in Korea will be led by Jiyoon Yoon.

FRESHMEN OUTDOOR TRIPS

Recreational Sports Outdoor Program is again offering Freshman Outdoor Trips August 31-September 3, and need faculty and staff to participate. Faculty or staff will be paired with one or two trained student leaders. The Outdoor Program leader coordinates all of the logistical detail and instruction. Faculty and staff come along to interact with new students.

The trip provides freshmen an opportunity to start at UMD with a better understanding of college life, learn that faculty/staff are great people, and they discover wonderful outdoor opportunities.

For more information visit http://www.umdrsop.org/(RSOP%20Web)/Outdoor_Trips/first_year_student_f08.html/Outdoor_Trips/first_year_student_f08.html) or call Tim Bates at 726-8743.

faculty/staff NEWS

Jay Austin, assistant professor, Large Lakes Observatory, was an invited speaker at a workshop held by the Institutes for Journalism and Natural Resources held in May and an invited speaker for the Minnesota Lakes and Waters Conference in Rochester, MN in May. Austin is the Keynote Speaker for the 2009 Lake Superior Youth Symposium in May and a Plenary speaker at the 2009 North American Benthological Society meeting in Grand Rapids, MI in May. All of the mentioned talks are on the general subject of Climate change and Lake Superior. Austin also received a grant from the Great Lakes Observing System in the amount of $28,000 to support mooring operations and other observations in Lake Superior during the 2009 field season.

Aydin Y. Durgunoglu, professor of psychology will present a program, “The links between the two languages of bilinguals,” at Växjö University, Växjö Sweden in May. Durgunoglu conducts research on the literacy development of both adults and children in different linguistic contexts, as well as on bilingual cognition. She is part of a team developing and implementing the adult literacy program, the Turkish Mother Child Education Foundation, which recently won a UNESCO King Sejong Literacy Prize.

Thomas J. Farrell is retiring from the Department of Writing Studies where he joined the faculty in 1987, being promoted to Associate Professor in 1988 and Professor in 2004. Farrell’s scholarship centers on the thought of the cultural historian Walter Ong regarding the historical development of literacy. His most well-known work is his book Walter Ong’s Contributions to Cultural Studies: The Phenomenology of the Word and I-Thou Communication (2000).

Emily Gaarder, assistant professor of criminology, was awarded the Arizona State University School of Justice Studies Outstanding Graduate Alumni Award this year. Gaarder traveled to ASU in April to present a scholarship, in her name, to a first generation graduate student.

Joe Gallian, professor, Department of Mathematics and Statistics, was the keynote speaker at the Wisconsin and Kansas sectional meetings of the Mathematical Association of America. He gave two talks at each meeting. Gallian also received a grant from the National Science Foundation to syndicate a documentary film about the United States team in the International Mathematics Olympiad, for which he was executive producer.

Gallian was also an invited participant in a three-day “Women in Mathematics Symposium” in Baltimore sponsored by the National Security Agency.

From Stephanie Guildford, assistant professor, Department of Biology. Although Lake Superior has excellent water quality relative to the other North American Great Lakes, lake trout have surprisingly high concentrations of PCBs. In this survey of 23 lakes, including Lake Superior, extending from northwestern Canada to the southern extreme of lake trout distribution, lake area and latitude accounted for most of the variation in PCBs. Trout in smaller and more northerly lakes had greater access to productive benthic littoral habitats for feeding and had lower PCB concentrations compared to lake trout in larger more southerly lakes where feeding was more restricted to the offshore, pelagic habitat. Guildford, S.J., Muir, D.C.G., Houde, M., Evans, M.S., Kidd, K.A., Whittle, D.M., Drouillard, K., Wang, X., Anderson, M.R., Bronte, C.R., DeVault, D.S., Haffner, D., Payne, J., Kling, H.J. 2008. PCB concentrations in lake trout (Salvelinus namaycush) are correlated to habitat use and lake characteristics. Environmental Science and Technology 42: 8239-8244.

Tom Johnson, professor, Department of Geological Sciences, gave an invited talk at the European Geosciences Union Meeting in Vienna in April entitled, “IODP - ICDP Interactions: Comparing and Contrasting the Drilled Paleoclimate Records on the African Continent With the ODP Records Offshore.” In addition, another recent publication: Late Quaternary vegetation history of southeast Africa: The molecular isotopic record from Lake Malawi by Isla S. Castañeda, Josef P. Werne, Thomas C. Johnson, Timothy R. Filley which appeared in Palaeogeography, Palaeoclimatology, Palaeoecology vol. 275 (2009) pp. 100-112. Isla was a Ph.D. student in LLO who is now a post-doc at the Netherlands Institute for Sea Research.

Eun-Kyung Suh, Department of Art and Design, has a new textile work, “We, Human Beings.” The work will be exhibited at the Studio Channel Islands Art Center, Camarillo, CA in the Focus on Fiber II, National Exhibition from May through July 2009.

M.J. Leone, recently retired executive office and administrative specialist in the Graduate School Office at UMD, has been selected as a winner of the 2009 President’s Award for Outstanding Service to the University of Minnesota.

Dan Martin, Department of Sociology presented the paper “Police, Protesters and Political Impression Management,” which he co-authored with John Hamlin, at the Pacific Sociological Association conference in San Diego, in April. The paper included the first wave of findings from their project, “The State Suppression of Dissent,” a project based upon data collected during protests at the Republican National Convention in St. Paul, 2008. The project is supported by a VCAA grant.

The Precambrian Research Center, a field mapping institute jointly managed by the Natural Resources Research Institute and the Department of Geological Sciences, will be hosting the 55th Annual Institute on Lake Superior Geology in Ely, MN from May 5-10. The meeting, which will attract over 200 participants, will include two days of technical sessions and seven field trips on the geology and resources of the Ely area. Jim Miller, associate professor, Department of Geological Sciences, is the principal chairman of the meeting.

Ted Pedersen, associate professor, Department of Computer Science, will give the invited keynote address at a workshop on “Software Engineering, Testing, and Quality Assurance for Natural Language Processing.” This will be held at the Annual Meeting of the North American Chapter for the Association for Computational Linguistics (NAACL) in Boulder, Colorado in June 2009. The title of his address is “The Road from Good Software Engineering to Good Science ... is a Two Way Street.” Pedersen and MS student Varada Kolhatkar (also from the Department of Computer Science) will present a demonstration of their software package WordNet::SenseRelate::AllWords at the Annual Meeting of the North American Chapter of the Association for Computational Linguistics (NAACL) in Boulder, Colorado in June 2009. This system assigns meanings to all words in text, and is available as free open-source software.

Two groups of students from the Chemical Engineering Senior Design class taught by Mike Rother, assistant professor, and Carol Horabik, instructor, both of the Department of Chemical Engineering, won 1st and 2nd prize at the AIChE Upper Midwest 49th Annual Symposium undergraduate poster contest on April 3rd in Bloomington, MN. The winning posters were “Process Optimization at Arkema” by Brady Clavel, Jack Keeney, Andrew Klym and Fernando Ramirez and “Taconite Harbor Emissions Control” by Nate Bosquez, Jeremy Elbers, Jason George and Stephanie Morissette.

LeAne Rutherford of the Instructional Development Service (IDS) presented “Do Ask, Do Tell: Weaving Students’ Opinions into Optimal Teaching Practice” in April at the Academy of Distinguished Teachers Conference on the Twin Cities Campus. This workshop, based on Shelley Smith’s IDS research, modeled a process for gathering student input and weaving student-stipulated patterns of good teaching practices into issues of respect.

Shelley Smith, an associate professor and teaching consultant with the Instructional Development Service, spent a week this spring in South Africa as part of the system wide Curriculum Integration (Internationalizing the Curriculum) project. She traveled with three other professionals Anthony Albecker, assistant academic advisor, Scott Daby, associate program director, Learning Abroad Center, and Laura Dammer Hess, coordinator, Career and Community Learning Center, all from the UMTC campus, to universities and service learning sites in and outside of Capetown and Durban.

Janelle L. Wilson, Department of Sociology/Anthropology, presented the paper, “Nostalgia, Olfaction, and the Self,” at the annual meetings of the Pacific Sociological Association in San Diego in April.

A UMD student design team has been selected as one of three winners in the North America region (including USA and Canada) in the 3rd Collegiate Student Safety Technology Design Competition. The team will represent North America at the international competition in the 21st International Technical Conference on the Enhanced Safety of Vehicles in June 2009 in Stuttgart, Germany. The team consists of Shan Hu, a master graduate student originally from China, and Ryan Bowlds, a senior Mechanical Engineering major undergraduate student from Eden Prairie, Minn. The team is advised by Xun Yu, assistant professor, Department of Mechanical and Industrial Engineering.
