UMD CO-HOSTS INT'L CONFERENCE

The Second China International Conference on Speech Therapy, co-hosted by the University of Minnesota Duluth, brought together speech-language pathologists and related clinical rehabilitation professionals in Beijing, July 27-29. The theme "clinical applications" permeated 28 presentations from 18 institutions, representing Australia, China, Hong Kong, Saudi Arabia, and the United States. Attendees exchanged current information about the diagnosis and treatment of speech, hearing, language, and swallowing disorders. The co-sponsors of the conferences—the Chinese Medical Doctor Association and the Beijing Rehabilitation Medical Association, along with UMD—have agreed to hold a third conference in 2011.

Representing UMD at the event were: Paul Deputy, dean of the College of Education and Human Service Professions; Mark Mizuko, professor and head, Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders (DCSD); Lynette Carlson, clinic director, DCSD; and Jolene Hyppa-Martin, instructor, DCSD. Seven UMD graduate students (Connie Beaumont, Cortney Bongard, Tracy Cutrone, Angela Heacock, Margaret Mork, Wendy Olson, Jana Smith and Danielle Visina) and two undergraduate students (Moriah Buck and Megan Mizuko) took part in the conference.
