Advanced Searching

Step 1: What is Academic OneFile and how do you access it?

Academic OneFile is a multi-subject database. To access Academic OneFile, go to UMD Library's Homepage (<http://d.umn.edu/lib>) and click on our Databases page. Go to Academic OneFile and click on the link.

Step 2: Advanced Search

Choose the term(s) you want to search and place them in the search box(es). You have a choice of searching for the items as keywords, or you may click on the drop down menu arrow and choose a specific field to search, such as author, title or subject. When you have the terms filled in, click on "Search" to perform your search.

	Keyword(ke)	hurricane katrina
And	Keyword(ke)	education

Step 3: Limiting Your Search

You can limit your search by checking the boxes in the area of information below the initial search fields. Below are some of the ways you can limit your search. PLEASE NOTE: It is NOT a good idea to limit your search to full text only.

<input type="checkbox"/>	to peer-reviewed publications
<input type="checkbox"/>	to document with images
by publication date(s)	<input type="text"/> i.e., 2005 or 01/01/1990-12/31/2005
by publication title:	<input type="text"/> Browse Publication Title
by publication subject:	<input type="text"/> Browse Publication Subject

Step 4: Retrieving your Article

Below is an example of a search result. If the citation includes links for "article with graphics" () , "full Text" () , or "PDF full text" () you can click the icon and retrieve the article. If the citation has the Find It button, click on it and see if UMD Library has the article in another database or in paper. If we don't have the article electronically or in print, you can request the item through Interlibrary Loan for free (10 business days are needed).
