Tales of transforms, tails of transcripts: some mathematical tidbits from bioinformatics

by

Marshall Hampton, Associate Professor, Department of Mathematics & Statistics, UMD

Abstract:

After giving some historical and scientific background, this talk will survey some of the more mathematical aspects of the rapidly developing field of bioinformatics. The emphasis will be on primary sequence (DNA or protein) analysis (sequences of letters from an alphabet, for example ACGT for DNA).

Thursday, September 17, 2015
2:50-3:00 Refreshments
3:00-4:00 PM
ENGR 290
EVERYONE IS WELCOME

The University of Minnesota Duluth is an equal opportunity educator and employer.