It touches everyone.

Methamphetamine is more than just an illegal, highly addictive drug. It’s a national epidemic that needs our local response. Meth is destroying the lives of those who use it, make it, or are simply near it. Meth is driving up the rate of violent crime, increasing healthcare costs and posing immediate environmental hazards.

The impact affects us all—whether you know someone who’s using it or not. And it’s something we can face, together. Please join us. And if you can, invite a friend, a neighbor, someone who doesn’t think this problem is real. Someone who should know.

FACING METH
