Memento mori Sept. 11, 2001

by Justin Henry Rubin

Program Note

I was born on the upper west side of Manhattan, lived in Forest Hills and Flushing, Queens, for a short time on Staten Island, visited my grandparents often in Brooklyn, and worked part of my way through college during the summers on Jerome Ave. in the Bronx; I lived all of my young life under the shadow of the twin towers of the World Trade Center, which were never far from view. Perhaps I never understood what they meant to me until they were gone and the lives that vanished with them.

Poem

Two tall towers, which fell to Earth that day, brought down with them dream, souls, innocence.

Yet, as families were torn, others were soon to form, brought together to be one voice, calling for, pleading for:

Peace, equality, compassion for all.

Two tall towers, our memory remains,
reawake the dreams of those lost that day.
