Go to the “Databases” page at the Library website. Click on “J-Stor.” Search up this article and read it:

In a review paper of 3-5 pages discuss: What does the case of dowsing tell us about the relationship of science and public opinion in the Enlightenment?

In the process you will need to answer the following questions:
1) What is the author’s thesis? (What is he trying to demonstrate in the article?)
2) How do the cases used by the author support this central point?
3) What does this study suggest about how “truth” or “falsehood” is determined?
4) Based on Lynn’s article, how may we explain the difference in the outcomes between the two cases discussed?

In addition, papers will be graded down for:
grammar and usage issues, unsubstantiated conclusions, vague or invalid generalizations, confusion over the content of the article, tangents, and otherwise getting things wrong.