Dean: Jack Bowman
212 Humanities Building, 218-726-7261

Associate Dean: Arden W. Weaver
212 Humanities Building, 218-726-8780

The School of Fine Arts—composed of the departments of art and design, music, and theatre; the Tweed Museum of Art; Glensheen; the Marshall Performing Arts Center; and Weber Music Hall—plays a leading role in fostering the arts and serving as a cultural and artistic center for the campus and northern Minnesota. The school provides a comprehensive education for students in the visual and performing arts, including majors in art and music education, and opportunities for those whose study in other disciplines is complemented by the fine arts curriculum. The school also offers selected graduate programs in art and music.

The faculty and staff of the departments of art and design, music, and theatre recognize the importance of exceptional instruction, scholarship, performance, research, and outreach. Their dedication to excellence is sustained within a balance of traditional academic experiences, exposure to new technologies and processes, and continuing performance/exhibition opportunities for students and faculty. The Tweed Museum of Art and Glensheen historic estate are both campus-wide learning laboratories and significant educational resources with important connections to the community.

All units within the School of Fine Arts are committed to demanding standards of performance in the classroom and in artistic endeavors. Through individualized preprofessional arts training in areas of specialization combined with broad-based liberal arts study, the school attracts students who possess both strong artistic and academic potential. The school has an ongoing commitment to assisting students in identifying postgraduate professional opportunities and making professional transitions, and continuing an active involvement in international exchanges in the arts. The school awards bachelor of arts (B.A.), bachelor of fine arts (B.F.A.), and bachelor of music (B.M.) degrees.

The vision of the School of Fine Arts is to:

- Offer excellent academic programs serving the needs of 21st century student artist/scholars
- Enrich academic programs through school-wide collaborations

- Augment programs and outreach through performances, lectures, and residencies of distinguished guest artists
- Enhance academic programs through international initiatives
- Elevate programs and outreach through professional units such as:
Tweed Museum of Art
Glensheen

Graduate Programs

An M.F.A. in art with an emphasis in graphic design is available. In addition, an M.M. in music education and an M.M. in performance are available to students desiring advanced professional study. See Graduate School for more information.

Office of Student Affairs

For information and advice on academic matters (e.g., academic standing; admissions; advisement; academic programs; change of major, college, or adviser; grievance and appeal procedures; undergraduate research), contact the SFA Office of Student Affairs, 212 Humanities Building. Forms and petitions are also available in this office.

SFA also offers a peer advisement program that supplements faculty advising. Peer advisers are art and design, music, and theatre undergraduates. They answer questions and provide assistance with forms, procedures, and class schedules. For more information, contact the SFA Office of Student Affairs.

Admission

See Policies and Procedures for additional criteria and procedures for admission or readmission to the school.

Admission into SFA does not necessarily mean admission into a specific degree program. Upon receiving the letter of admission to UMD, students should go to their department office and talk with a faculty adviser to learn the requirements for specific majors. All prospective music majors must audition for acceptance into a degree program and complete an entrance interview and placement examinations in written theory and aural and keyboard skills. Students interested in graphic design and art education are initially admitted to pre-majors in these areas and go through a portfolio review process to determine admission to the major.

Residence Requirements

Degree candidates must complete at least 30 degree credits at UMD. At least 20 of the last 30 degree credits completed immediately before graduation must be taken at UMD.

Academic Standing

Good Academic Standing

SFA students must maintain a minimum GPA to be in good academic standing. For students who have attempted 31 or more credits (at UMD or elsewhere), the minimum overall GPA required is 2.00. Because some students have difficulty adjusting to the standards of a university education, students who have attempted fewer than 31 credits (at UMD or elsewhere) must maintain a minimum overall GPA of 1.80 to remain in good academic standing.

For graduation, a 2.50 GPA in the major is required for the B.F.A. and B.M. degrees. A 2.00 GPA in the major is required for the B.A. degree.

Probation

Students with an overall GPA lower than that required for good academic standing are placed on academic probation. Students who have attempted 31 or more credits are returned to good academic standing status the semester after attaining a 2.00 minimum GPA. Students who have attempted fewer than 31 credits are returned to good academic standing status the semester after attaining a 1.80 minimum GPA.

Dismissal

Students who fail to attain the required minimum overall GPA for good academic standing after one semester of probation are subject to dismissal. Dismissal decisions are made in the college unit following final examinations. Dismissed students are notified immediately and their day school registration for the next semester is canceled. At the college's discretion, students may be granted an additional semester of probation if they are making progress.

Readmission

Dismissed students must present evidence of improved academic capability to justify their readmission. Petition forms for readmission and information concerning academic standing are available in the SFA Office of Student Affairs, 212 Humanities Building.

Student Grievance Policy

SFA students may file an official grievance if they are having a problem with a class or instructor within the school. The procedures for filing this grievance are available in the SFA Office of Student Affairs, 212 Humanities Building.

College Honors

At UMD, a maximum of 15 percent of the graduating class can graduate with college honors. In SFA, the top 3 percent of the graduating class is designated summa cum laude, the next 5 percent magna cum laude, and the next 7 percent cum laude.

At the beginning of each year, GPAs necessary to achieve these honors are posted in the Office of Student Affairs, 212 Humanities Building. The GPAs are based on the previous spring semester graduating class. To be eligible for honors, students must earn at least 30 credits at UMD. For more information, contact the Office of Student Affairs, 212 Humanities Building.

Dean's List of Academic Excellence

Each semester, SFA students are recognized for high academic achievement by being placed on the SFA Dean's List of Academic Excellence. A memo is placed on their transcript indicating this achievement. To be eligible for this honor, students must have a 3.50 minimum GPA and 12 graded credits. Incompletes, missing grades, Ns, and Fs disqualify a student from eligibility.

Students who have been on the Dean's List of Academic Excellence for four or more semesters are given special recognition by the school at the time of graduation.

Department Honors

Art and Design

Honors are awarded to graduating art and design majors for exceptional achievement. Candidates, nominated by art and design department faculty, receive honors for distinguished achievement demonstrated in part by the senior student exhibition or a senior presentation or project.

Music

Honors are awarded to graduating music majors for exceptional achievement. Candidates, nominated by music department faculty, receive honors for distinguished achievement in musical performance, composition, or exceptional ability and accomplishment as a music educator.

Theatre

Honors are awarded to graduating theatre majors for exceptional achievement. Candidates, nominated by theatre department faculty, receive honors for distinguished contributions in acting, musical theatre, design/technical theatre, stage management, or general theatre involvement.

Multiple Majors and/or Degrees

Students with a baccalaureate degree from another institution may earn a degree with a different major in SFA by completing all degree requirements for that new major including 30 UMD credits.

Students may earn different degrees and/or majors concurrently while enrolled in SFA. If both majors are approved for the B.A. or B.F.A., at least 120 credits are required. If both majors are approved for the B.M., at least 130 credits are required.

Departmental approval is necessary to be admitted to more than one B.M. degree.

Students may complete an additional major not offered by SFA by fulfilling the requirements of the second major in another college. Students receive only one degree offered by SFA but the second major is listed on their transcript.

If students wish to earn degrees from SFA and another UMD college or school, all degree requirements must be met in SFA as well as in the other college or school. The two degrees are awarded at the time of graduation. Students should consult their faculty advisers and the SFA Office of Student Affairs, 212 Humanities Building, before pursuing two degrees.

Art and Design

Professors: Gloria DeFilipps Brush, Thomas F. Hedin, James C. Klueg, Dean R. Lettenstrom; Associate Professors: Robert Appleton, Janice D. Kmetz, Robert A. Repinski, Robyn S. Roslak; Assistant Professors: Alison Aune-Hinkel, Sarah Bauer, Sung-Phil Choo, Stephen Hilyard, Catherine Ishino, Eun-Kyung Suh

The Department of Art and Design offers a broad range of courses in studio art, graphic design, art history and theory, and art education. Major or minor programs may be selected by students interested in artistic or scholarly development or in liberal education or by those planning a career in arts administration, teaching, graphic design, or museum work.

Much of the Tweed Museum of Art's program is related to the interests and needs of art students. Loan exhibitions and the permanent collection are available for study. All art majors, except those in art history, must present an exhibition of their own artwork in the museum during their senior year.

Students who wish to pursue the art education K-12 or graphic design B.F.A. degree program initially are admitted into the pre-art education or pre-graphic design program. Students are admitted directly into the art history and studio art-general majors. The pregraduate art major with emphasis in either studio art or art and technology has a separate application process, with the prerequisite of completion of 18 credits in art and design department studio courses; for transfer students to apply for this major, completion of 9 art and design department studio credits is required.

During the second semester of art study at UMD, the pre-majors may seek admission to the majors in art education K-12 and graphic design through an application and review process. They enroll in the no credit, no cost portfolio review course appropriate to the major they seek. Students transferring into the department with at least 9 credits of art courses may apply during their first semester of study through the same process. Students who do not qualify for admission may reapply once in a subsequent semester.

Art—Pregraduate

B.F.A.

Pregraduate art majors have as their priority the development of a strong personal creative direction in one or more of the studio areas offered within the department. Art history and seminar courses provide the foundation for this course of study. This program specifically serves students who aspire to graduate-level fine arts study by enabling them to prepare a concentrated body of work in one or more areas.

The studio art emphasis allows students to focus on a particular area of interest within the visual arts and to produce an extensive body of work. Students accepted into this emphasis use the more traditional art materials/media, but may elect some digitally based coursework.

The art and technology emphasis allows a student to concentrate on a particular area of interest within the visual arts to produce an extensive body of work that is digitally based. Students accepted into this emphasis focus on new technologies and electronic/digitally based media, but may elect some courses involving more traditional media.

Admission Requirements

Students wishing to transfer into the pregraduate art major should begin their application for candidacy process before the sixth week of the semester preceding the term the transfer is to take effect. Students must have completed a minimum of 18 credits in art and design department studio courses to be eligible to apply. If a student has transfer credits in art from another institution, a minimum of 9 art department studio credits at UMD should be taken before applying. Students are admitted into the program through portfolio review. Additional information on applying is available in the art and design department office.

Graphic Design

B.F.A.

Graphic design is one of our society's newest art forms. It is by turns fine and commercial art, communication, information, architecture, environments, interaction, sound, and motion. It is print- and screen-based, real and virtual, 2-, 3-, and 4- dimensional. Graphic design involves type and language, abstract and figurative imagery, concept, technology, and craft.

The discipline takes place within commercial, academic, and institutional contexts in the private and public realms and allows individuals to enter a rewarding profession which demands creativity and vision.

The Department of Art and Design at UMD takes advantage of its position in a School of Fine Arts within a university setting, allowing students to gain firsthand experience of all the arts in a way that is possible in only a smaller percentage of universities nationwide.

Art History B.A.

The B.A. in art history offers introductory and advanced level courses from pre-history to the present. The visual arts are studied in relation to cultural values and beliefs as well as to the unique perceptions of individual artists. A minor or second major in a related field emphasizes a broader knowledge base and is an integral feature of the B.A. degree. Students are encouraged to develop their own ideas about art and art history through research papers and projects.

The program offers liberal education and upper division credits. Students may elect to major or minor in the field. Art history often attracts students from other departments, who bring their own interests and insights to bear on the study of art. Research-related art museum internships are available.

Final Project

All art history majors are required to write a research paper on a subject of their choice. This paper may be one written previously for independent study in art history or for an art history class. It must be revised in consultation with the faculty member for whom it was originally written, who reads and approves the final version. The final paper is kept on file in the art department.

The student may begin or revise the paper after completing most of the art history courses required for the major. The paper must be completed before the last semester of residency and approved by an art history faculty member before graduation.

Theatre

Professors: Ann Bergeron, Kathryn A. Martin, Arden Weaver;
Associate Professors: Jon Berry, Patricia Dennis (department head), Mark Harvey, Thomas Isbell, William Payne, Cathryn Ufema

The Department of Theatre, housed in the Marshall Performing Arts Center, has three objectives: to teach, produce, and sponsor theatre. The department provides academic and professional training in the arts of the theatre: acting, singing, directing, critical evaluation, dance, scenic design, lighting, sound, costume, properties, stage management, theatre history and theory, and theatre management, as well as a broad liberal arts study.

The co-curricular producing arm of the department, UMD Theatre, provides practical experience for University students while enhancing the cultural life of the University and the communities it serves. Auditions for all theatre productions are open to any student currently enrolled at UMD. Productions range from classical to contemporary, comedy to tragedy, musical theatre to experimental. Modern, jazz, tap, and classical dance are offered in academics as well as in the production season.

The department sponsors performances and residencies by a variety of theatre artists. Recent visitors have included world-class performing artists, directors, choreographers, designers, and dance companies.

In the summer months, the department is the home of the Minnesota Repertory Theatre. MRT produces two to three shows that run in revolving repertory and is dedicated to presenting quality theatre by bringing together working professionals with student artists-in-training.

Admission Requirements

Students majoring in theatre for the B.F.A. are admitted as provisional candidates for the degree when they enter the University.
