1. General Comments for the Week

This week we have a brief review of the Midterm—with an eye on the Final Exam.

And then we're off to Turkey where we'll meet a 12-year-old Turkish girl, Elif, who will tell us about her Sufi spiritual journey, up-until-so-far, similarly to the way Chai Thao two weeks ago introduced us to her Hmong traditions in Appleton, Wisconsin. Elif is part of the Mevlevi Brotherhood, known as "Whirling Dervishes" in the Western world. They are a part of Sufi/Mystic traditional Islam.

We'll also check on the news from Turkey, and also from Mexico, another country categorized as "Torn National Cultures" by Gannon and Pillai. And we visit both countries in the text.

We close the week asking you to take a brief survey, to help judge where we are on our own journey towards Understanding Global Cultures.
