Welcome to Understanding Global Cultures

Available on-line in your Moodle folder at <moodle.umn.edu>

This will be a great course, and a great experience.
You will see . . .

Some people like to procrastinate. Others like to arrive early, and in some ways they’re “pre-crastinators”.

I am sending this note out early to make it more convenient for the pre-crastinators to order the textbook on-line (if that is an attractive option for you), and / or to let you get started reading some of the interesting materials that we have for the class (if you are the kind of person who likes to do that sort of thing). Or you might want to start watching one or other of the internationally-award-winning films and videos that we have lined up for the class. If none of these options apply to you, and you feel like a little end-of-the-summer procrastination, just relax and enjoy the wonderful fall weather, or maybe even take a trip to the Minnesota State Fair.

Interest in Understanding Global Cultures has never been higher, and more important . . .
We’ll have a look at Global Cultures, as well as at the folks in Global Cultures looking at us.

I am looking forward to meeting you in class on the 29th at 2:00 p.m. in Cina 214.

At your convenience, have a look at the information in your Moodle folder at <https://www.moodle.umn.edu/>.

Detailed information on the textbook for the course can be found at

The exams will be open-book essays constructed from a list of study questions that you help create, so it would be a good idea for you to have your own copy of the text you plan to use in the exams.

For the exams you should normally just need to read the text and other assigned works carefully and be able to discuss them intelligently. That is, you should read these as if you had picked it/them up at an airport or neighborhood bookshop, or read them in the morning or on-line paper, because you were interested in the subject and wanted to know more about the subject, like literally millions of people are doing in everyday life.

PLEASE NOTE: Some students are used to principally memorizing facts in classes. This class is not one where that is the focus. It is about investigating new topics, reading, listening, synthesizing ideas, thinking, exploring, and becoming familiar enough with the various subjects, peoples and places to carry on an intelligent conversation in modern-day society.

In short, this class aims to give you practice in critical thinking, and even creativity.
Critical thinking, involving evaluation and synthesis, has long been regarded as essential for success in the modern-day world. In recent years, actually for two decades, creativity has also become central to success, and "process skills" vital to creativity. Process skills involve "strategies to reframe challenges and extrapolate and transform information, and to accept and deal with ambiguity" (Pappano, "Learning to Think Outside the Box," The New York Times EducationLife, 9 February 2014, 8). Laura Pappano, writer in residence at Wellesley Center for Women at Wellesley College, points out that "In 2010 'creativity' was the factor most crucial for success found in an I.B.M. survey of 1,500 chief executives in 33 industries. These days 'creative' is the most used buzzword in LinkedIn profiles two years running" (2014, 8).

Related to that, here are two recent interesting articles, the first from Minnesota Public Radio . . .

A Memo to My Students
Re: College and the Real World
-- Marvellen Weimer, Faculty Focus (17 August 2016)

With all of the class materials you will be expected to share your ideas and comments with others in the Class Forums and wikis.

It is not accidental that TAPS, Canada’s leading Beer Magazine—in fact it’s THE BEER MAGAZINE—features this these kind of exams in its editorial of Winter 2012, p. 2; at least one major Editor in Chief thinks it’s message is worth noting and imitating.

In a nutshell, this course consists of three main segments:

I Orientation and Background
II Explorations

- Comparative / Cross-Cultural
- Holistic
- Ethnographic Case Studies from the Real World: Real People . . . Real Places from Around the Globe

III Student Presentations on Term Research Projects

For the first part of the course much of the material for the week will be presented in the form of text materials and slide materials. In the second section of the semester, once you have mastered the basic information relating to Understanding Global Cultures, we will look (generally comparatively, cf., Main Characteristics of Anthropology in Week 01) at a series of video materials from around the world. The final section will focus on your research projects.

One of the four main characteristics of American Anthropology is fieldwork, "a primary research technique, involving "participant observation," which usually means living among the people one is interested in learning from and about. It would be wonderful if for anthropology classes we could just rent a bus or charter a plane and fly off for a year or more to learn first-hand from the people themselves. Money, time, and practicality prohibit that, so the next best things—when it comes to studying anthropology—is going to places and viewing subjects by video, and we will do a lot of that this semester. More information on Visual Anthropology is available on-line at

In laying out a course one has many options. Given that time is limited one can, for example, opt for an approach that portrays basic features of a large number of cultures/countries, or one can focus more in-depth on a limited number of topics and cultures/countries. In class, we will focus more in-depth on topics and cultures/countries, focusing on a few rather than many. The readings, on the other hand, present a broader view, featuring over three dozen cultures/countries/regions. Together, the text plus the in-class materials should give you a "pretty good" Understanding of Global Cultures.

You will find that there is "an awful lot" of materials on-line—maybe even too many!

BUT, you will find the required materials center stage in your Moodle folder. Most of the rest of the materials are optional, but you may find that material useful in working on your class project.

Where to start?

Probably the best place is by having a quick look at the "First Day Handout" on-line at <http://www.d.umn.edu/clia/faculty/troufs/anth1095/gcfhandout_first-day.html#title>.
Then have a look at the "Course Overview" in Block 1 (the top of page one) of your Moodle folder <https://www.moodle.umn.edu/>. See the figure in the “First Day Handout,” which is like the “Nutshell” outline above.

The Course in a Nutshell

In a nutshell, ANTH 1080 Understanding Global Cultures consists of three main segments:

I Orientation and Background
   - Introduction
   - Basic Concepts
   - History
   - Theory
   - Methods and Techniques

II Explorations
   - Comparative / Cross-Cultural
   - Holistic
   - Ethnographic Case Studies from the Real World: Real People . . . Real Places from Around the Globe

III Student Presentations on Term Research Project

Then have a look at your Moodle Gradebook folder, which gives a nice listing of the actual requirements and due dates for the course. (You'll find the link for that in the left sidebar of Block 1. See the figure in the “First Day Handout.”)
Please heed the earlier word of caution. Moodle recommends that you use the Firefox browser (available free at <https://support.mozilla.org/en-US/kb/update-firefox-latest-version>). The Windows Internet Explorer (IE) occasionally will not display items on your screen. These items will simply not be there on IE when they are fine on Moodle or even on Chrome. Microsoft Word should likewise not be used to cut and paste things to Moodle; bad things can happen to your file if you do—randomly.
Almost every time you are asked to enter text in Moodle, you will see the message, “Please do not copy/paste text directly from Microsoft Word. See explanation here <http://www1.umn.edu/moodle/issues.html#10>.” Please pay attention to that request.

So once again, welcome to Anth 1080 Understanding Global Cultures.
This will be a great course, and a great experience.
You will see. . . .

Thanks for signing on for Understanding Global Cultures.

I’m looking forward to seeing you on Tuesday, the 29th, in Cina 214, at 2:00 p.m.

My office hours and contact information (and other regular schedule information) can be found at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anth1602/pcoffice.html>.

Finally, laptops are welcome, in fact encouraged, in the classroom. Many find a laptop quite useful in following the lectures as all lectures are web supported. You can, for example, download all of the slide materials used in class.

Having said that, consider the latest research that suggests that . . .
"For better learning in college lectures, lay down the laptop and pick up a pen"
Your Moodle site is now on-line. Have a look at it at <moodle.umn.edu>.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to post them on Moodle or e-mail troufs@d.umn.edu.

See you on the 29th.

I hope you enjoy the State Fair weather, or maybe even the State Fair itself.

Best Wishes,

P.S. If you are new to the world of "technology" don't worry too much about that. Things may not "work" for you at first, but hang in there and we'll help you along. If you have not used Moodle course management system before, you might find it helpful to view the orientation tutorial.
