What's Happening Week 2?

I hope your first week with Anthropology of Food went well, and that it has been enjoyable, and that you are liking the readings and other materials.

Remember that if in the current difficult and unusual times you find yourself in a situation where you need more time, or other assistance, to complete any of the materials of this course, or for any other reason, please let me know privately and I and the University of Minnesota will do whatever we can to accommodate your situation(s). Do not be afraid to ask; we are here to help in whatever way we can.

Now would be a good time to have a look at the overall organization of the course. Have a look at . . .

The Course: Part I

Anthropology graduates, reflecting back on their time with us at UMD, suggested in our surveys that it would be a good idea to tie the individual courses in the Anthropology curriculum together a little more. So that's what we're going to do for much of the next two or three weeks, after we finish the Orientation and Introduction.

This will also help set the basic analytic, theoretical, and historical framework for the course. This material should provide you with the background and analytical tools to help you with your class Project, and help you begin to make sense out of the topics that follow later in the course—a good deal of which will be provided via video—and towards the end of the semester with your class presentations.

For generations, fat has been the enemy.

We've demonized it as a cumbersome health risk and cast overweight individuals as too gluttonous or lazy to make healthy choices. But scientists are coming to understand that fat is not so simple.

In fact, it's a fascinating and dynamic organ — one whose size has more to do with biological processes than personal choices. Now, NOVA takes you inside the amazing world of fat. Why don't sumo wrestlers suffer from the health problems that other obese people do? Why has evolution hardwired us to hang onto fat even when it's unhealthy? And what would happen if you had no fat at all?

Through real-life stories of hunter-gatherers, supermodels, and a BIGGEST LOSER contestant, NOVA explores the complex functions of fat and the role it plays in controlling hunger, hormones, and even reproduction on "The Truth About Fat." -- PBS

Video materials used in class illustrate many topics covered in this course. Consider these presentations similar to lab sessions, that is, watch them carefully and critically rather than simply watch another movie or video. The exams will include these materials, and it will be assumed that you have paid critical attention to them.

Dates and videos/films may change.

PROJECT INFORMATION . . .

Basic Information

Main Due Dates

Start thinking a little bit about your Class Project.

Start thinking about something that you, personally, are interested in, and we'll work things out from there.

This Project is something with which you should be able to have fun.

It's a good time to have at least a quick look at the information for your class project, which you can find at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anthfood/afproject.html#title>.

Your class Project is your Term Paper, plus a short “work-in-progress” presentation.

Details of Term Paper

Your Informal Project Statement, or Project Proposal, is due by the end of Week 4, Saturday, 4 February 2023. Basically that's a short informal summary personal statement of what you are interested in doing, how you think you might go about it, and what resources you are thinking about using. It can be as simple as the following:

“For my project I’m thinking about X, or Y, and these are the items I’m thinking about using [add short list]. This is why I’m interested in this/these project(s) [add your reason(s)]. . . .

It is an informal statement. A more formal statement will come later on (in Week 7, Saturday, 25 February 2023).
