This will be a great course, and a great experience. You will see. . .

The great Minnesota State Fair Starts Thursday, 22 August 2019. The Minnesota State Fair food is legendary, this year featuring thirty new foods (of the sixty-five that were proposed), and seven new vendors!
The Minnesota State Fair annually offers 450 different kinds of food—typically more than 60 of them on sticks—from about 300 vendors. Look for Complete State Fair coverage from the StarTribune starting next week.

Carnitas, pit-smoked brisket and jamm’nn brisket, green chorizo, pulled buffalo chicken, lamb T-bone chops, mortadella pork sausage, shrimp & grits fritters, and minced beef Turkish pizza, are big with New Fair Foods this year.

Cuisines from other countries always appear on the New Fair Foods list (or at least foods that sound like they’re from, or should be from, other countries): this year’s new fair fare includes the “Italian-inspired” Bada Bing Sandwich, Mexican carnitas, and Mexican style marinated pork in the New Waffle Wraps, Cuban Fusian Fajita, Greek Feta Bites (it’s hard to beat Greek food), Portuguese chorizo and potato Friend Tacos On-a-stick, Irish grilled soda bread “Sota” sandwiches, Irish Whiskey Boneless Wings, Dubliner Irish Whiskey Tipsy Pecan Tart, Holy Land Lamb T-Bone Chops, and the above-mentioned Turkish Lahmucan spicy minced beef pizza.

And from our good neighbors in South Dakota . . .

And, of course, there are the other 275 or so perennial Minnesota State Fair food favorites, my favorite being, of course, the “Tiny Tim” doughnuts . . . (How do you spell “doughnuts”?)

This year it looks like we’re going to have to wait until Christmas for our lutefisk [literally “lye fish”].

About the Anthropology of Food course

Some people like to procrastinate. Others like to arrive at a dinner party early, and in other ways they’re “precrastinators”.

I am sending this note out early to make it more convenient for the precrastinators to order textbooks on-line (if that is an attractive option for you), and/or to let you get started reading one or other of the interesting books we have for the class (if you are the kind of person who likes to do that sort of thing). Or you might want to start watching one or other of the many internationally-award-winning films and videos that we have lined up for the class.

If none of these options apply to you, and you feel like a little end-of-summer procrastination, just relax and enjoy the wonderful autumn weather, and, the rest of your break.
Interest in food and culture has never been higher.

Whether or not you agree with the various commentators, and there are many these days, representing all sides of the food industry and all food interest groups, food is IN the news. And some weeks food IS the news. And that's true year 'round, not just for State Fair time . . .

Just recently there have been several interesting items in the news:

Just for the fun of it, have a look over these news items that have appeared this month, then pick one and have a look at it (no it will not be on the exam).

See what you think about it:

- Europe ‘dynamic’ for CBD food innovation but legal hurdles remain -- FOODnavigator (14 August 2019)
- Québec wants to ban the sale of cannabis candies and cookies -- ConfectioneryNews (13 August 2019)
- Climate change: German MPs want higher meat tax -- BBCNews (08 August 2019)
- Plant-based diet can fight climate change - UN -- BBCNews (08 August 2019)
- Sanders leads fight against 'obscene' Trump plan to cut food stamp access -- The Guardian (08 August 2019)
- Climate crisis reducing land’s ability to sustain humanity, says IPCC -- The Guardian (08 August 2019)
- Mexico cartel hangs bodies from city bridge in grisly show of force [over avocados?] -- The Guardian (08 August 2019)
- Revealed: how Monsanto's 'intelligence center' targeted journalists and activists -- The Guardian (08 August 2019)
And the list goes on . . . featuring food news for everyone.
Some of the best sources for up-to-date news on food include
What FoodAnthro is Reading Now. . . . and Marion [no-relation-to-the-company] Nestle’s Food Politics Blog, The New York Times Food Section, BBC Food, the StarTribune, National Geographic > Food, and MPRNews > Food regularly carry interesting and important articles on food around the world.
Not so long ago my wife, Kim, and I stopped off in Hawaii on the way back from Australia and New Zealand where we were visiting relatives. I learned in the “trivia” section of the New Zealand Air in-flight magazine that Hawaiians eat more Spam per capita than the citizens of any other country on earth, except Guam (with North Korea’s Kim Jong-un preparing to fire their intercontinental ballistic missiles at Guam, perhaps having stockpiled mountains of Spam is part of the Guamanian civil defense preparedness). Hawaiians and Guamanians love our Minnesota Spam! It is even reported that some eat it as a delicacy.

Spam, Lovely Spam! Mystery Meat Celebrates 80th Spam-iversary
– LiveScience (05 July 2017)

Five years ago, to start off Spam’s 75th birthday year the Minneapolis StarTribune celebrated “America’s love of Spam” in a full-page feature on one of Minnesota’s best-known products (next to Scotch tape) <http://www.startribune.com/lifestyle/travel/137199258.html> StarTribune, Sunday, January 15, 2012, G5.

Minnesota’s Hormel meat packer opened a new 14,000 square foot Spam museum in Austin in 2016: Canning its old location, Austin’s new Spam Museum opens . . .
My sister-in law nearly “pukes” when she sees Spam in my refrigerator (her term, not mine), so she’s left out of the “love affair” article, except, perhaps in the second half of the “love it or hate it” part of people’s general reaction to Spam.

You have spam in your e-mail box, if not in your icebox. And if it’s not in your icebox or cupboard, why not? (Amazon.com is currently offering six-packs of Spam Classic for $22.99—just $0.52 more than it was a year ago in January.

There’s probably a good reason why Spam is or isn’t in your icebox or cupboard.

Or maybe several.

I once owned an official plastic Spamburger cutter, which after it was forbidden in the kitchen I used for a while as a Christmas tree ornament. It mysteriously disappeared one year, about the Feast of the Three Kings, and Spamburgers haven’t been the same since. And this year, again, our Christmas tree was Spamburger-cutter-less. (Used Spamburger cutters on e-Bay, WHEN you can get one, have been going for $19.99- $24.99 on eBay, listed as "A Vintage Mod Retro Spam Spamburger Hamburger Plastic Vertical Push Down Slicer".)

The Chinese, meanwhile, have come up with a cute little plastic Spam cutter that cuts designs of a car, ship and train from a single slab of Spam. And you can best cut your Spam with the Musubi Easy Stainless Steel Spam Slicer, which in one swift motion will divide your single lump of Spam into nine neatly portioned slab-ettes ready for the Musubi’s final touch.

And it can’t be long until there is an “Impossible Spam-burger.” One of the hottest foods right now is the “Impossible Burger”—recently adopted by places like Burger King . . .
Burger King’s plant-based Whopper gets glowing review – from a meat lobbyist
-- The Guardian (08 April 2019)

Behold the Beefless ‘Impossible Whopper’
-- The New York Times (01 April 2019)

The Fish Is Boneless, (Fishless, Too.)
-- The New York Times (10 July 2019)

We don’t eat Spam in our house unless my sister-in-law’s sister is away.

Spam.com may represent “Americana” at its finest—including a recipe exchange, should you like to try some. And you can visit Spam on facebook. Try the Hawaiian-Themed Spam Recipes for a little variety. And for the real treat there’s always the annual April Waikiki Spam Jam in Hawaii.

The point here is that Spam makes you happy or makes you vomit, depending on a lot of cultural experiences to which you have been exposed. And it’s not just about Spam as a food product; it’s about Spam as a cultural phenomenon.

And if you don’t have it in your cabinet or refrigerator, you certainly have it on your computer.

In a much broader way, we’ll be exploring those cultural aspects of food—nutritional, spiritual, social, political, psychological, historical, recreational, economic, and the like—so stay tuned.

The exams will be open-book essays constructed from a list of study questions that you help create, so it would be a good idea for you to have your own copy of each text you plan to use in the exams.

For the exams you should normally just need to read the books carefully and be able to discuss them intelligently. That is, you should read these as if you had picked it/them up at an airport or neighborhood bookshop because you were interested in the subject and wanted to know more about it, like literally millions of people are doing in everyday life.

PLEASE NOTE: Some students are used to principally memorizing facts in classes. This class is not one where that is the focus. It is about investigating new topics, reading, listening, synthesizing ideas, thinking, exploring, and becoming familiar enough with the various subjects, peoples and places to carry on an intelligent conversation in modern-day society.

In short, this class aims to give you practice in critical thinking, and even creativity.

Critical thinking, involving evaluation and synthesis, has long been regarded as essential for success in the modern-day world. In recent years, actually for two decades, creativity has also become central to success, and "process skills" vital to creativity. Process skills involve "strategies to reframe challenges and extrapolate and transform information, and to accept and deal with ambiguity" (Pappano, "Learning to Think Outside the Box," The New York Times EducationLife, 9 February 2014, 8). Laura Pappano, writer in residence at Wellesley Center for Women at Wellesley College, pointed out that "... 'creativity' was the factor most crucial for success found in an I.B.M. survey of 1,500 chief executives in 33 industries." (2014, 8).

With all of the class materials you will be expected to share your ideas and comments with others in the Class Discussions.

In a nutshell, this course consists of three main segments:

I Orientation and Background
- Introduction
- Basic Concepts
- History
- Theory
- Methods and Techniques

II Explorations
- Comparative / Cross-Cultural
- Holistic
- Ethnographic Case Studies from the Real World: Real People... Real Places from Around the Globe

III Student Presentations on Term Research Projects

For the first part of the course much of the material for the week will be presented in the form of text materials and slide materials. In the second section of the semester, once you have mastered the basic information relating to the Anthropology of Food, we will look (generally comparatively, cf., Main Characteristics of Anthropology in Week 01) at a series of video materials from around the world. The final section will focus on your research projects.

One of the four main characteristics of American Anthropology is fieldwork, "a primary research technique, involving ‘participant observation,’ which usually means living among the people one is interested in learning from and about. It would be wonderful if for anthropology classes we could just rent a bus or charter a plane and fly off for a year or more to learn first-hand from the people themselves. Money, time, and practicality prohibit that, so the next best things—when it comes to studying anthropology—is going to places and viewing subjects by video, and we will do a lot of that this semester. More information on Visual Anthropology is available on-line at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anth1604/visual_anthropology.html>.

With all of these materials you will be expected to share your ideas and comments with others in the Class Discussions and wikis. I'm looking forward to that.

You will find that there is "an awful lot" of materials on-line—maybe even too many!

Where to start?

Probably the best place to start is with the "First Day Handout" on-line at <http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anthfood/afhandout_first-day.html#title>.

1. Open your canvas Folder and have a look around (once it is made available on-line)... <http://canvas.umn.edu/>
2. Go to your canvas Dashboard, and . . .

3. Select ANTH 3888 . . .

It will look something like this . . .

Then have a look at the course “Home” page of your canvas folder <http://canvas.umn.edu/>. It will look something like this . . .
Check the links on your “Home” page . . .

Play around with your Canvas folder materials. . . . From your “Home” page go to “Assignments” . . .
Then look at your Canvas folder materials by clicking the triangle of the “Explore Canvas . . .” drop-down menu.
When the "Explore Canvas . . ." menu drops down, checkout the "Canvas Student Guide".

Start with the "Canvas Student Guide" if you are new to Canvas.

Then checkout the other items that interest you most.

Then set/update your Canvas (1) "User Settings" and "Profile Picture".
Complete or update your (2) "Canvas Profile".
Then set your (3)"Canvas Notification Preferences".
Your Canvas User Settings information looks like this . . .

link: <https://community.canvaslms.com/docs/DOC-10614-4212710341>
Then have a look at your canvas Gradebook folder, which gives a nice listing of the actual requirements and due dates for all of the requirements of the course. (You'll find the link for that in the Course Navigation column on the left-hand side of your “Home” page.)
The University is scheduled to open your site on August 18th. Have a look at it at <http://canvas.umn.edu/>.

So once again, welcome to Anth 3888 Anthropology of Food. This will be a great course, and a great experience.

You will see. . . .

Thanks for signing on for Anthropology of Food. I am looking forward to “meeting” you in. In the meantime, you might want to peruse the information in your <canvas> folder at <http://canvas.umn.edu/>. The Student Guide / Overview / Tour can be very helpful.

P.S. If you are new to the world of "technology" don't worry too much about that. Things may not "work" for you at first, but hang in there and we'll help you along. If you have not used course management system before, you might find it helpful to view the Canvas Student Guide.
