This week we’re first going to have a look at how people get their food in nonindustrial societies . . .
featuring (1) the classic film The Desert People, (2) Ch. 2 of Eating Cultures, “Hunter-Gathering or Foraging,” and (3) the chapters from Michael Pollan’s Omnivore's Dilemma on foraging (Chs. 15-17).

Before you view the film The Desert People, have a look at the viewing guide.

On the viewing guide focus on the “Terms / Concepts” and “Notes” sections. Peruse the other information on the film’s viewing guide as you see fit.
The Midterm Exam is coming up — next week.

When it is available — and that will be shortly — use the annotated questions from the assignment of last week as study questions. —

Other information on the Midterm Exam is available at

Midterm Exam General Information

<http://www.d.umn.edu/cla/faculty/troufs/anthfood/af/exams_midterm.html>

After the exam (next week)

we’ll spend much of the rest of the semester (up until it we look at your Research Project) examining how people get their food in nonindustrial and industrial cultures, and in exploring the social, corporeal, sacred, psychological, political, economic, and cultural aspects of food—that’s the holistic anthropology approach (you remember that from Week 1).

In short, after the Midterm Exam, “Food and Culture” will be our focus.

And, hopefully, in the last part of the term you will be applying your analytical anthropological skills that you have been developing and honing in the first four weeks of the course.
Assignments and Events

... this week are listed on your (1) “Calendar”, your (2) “Syllabus”, sections of your canvas folder.
And for fun, a trivia question this week . . .

How many gallons of sap does it take to make one gallon of maple syrup?
